11. delete the collection
12. I have two replicas, one for each shard
13. TODO: Isn't this a bug?

14. And let's fail one more time because to ensure that the math doesn't do weird stuff it we have more replicas
15. wait for recoveries to finish, for a clean shutdown - see SOLR-9645
16. Adding a replica on a dead node should fail
17. TODO - WTF? shouldn't this not contain the collection?
18. create the collections node, but nothing else
19. manually create a collections zknode
20. delete via API - should remove collections node
21. TODO - should we remove this behaviour?
22. create a core that simulates something left over from a partially-deleted collection
23. missing required collection parameter
24. TODO - the local state is cached and causes the request to fail with 'unknown shard' assertEquals(1, cluster.getSolrClient().query(collection, new SolrQuery("*:~").setParam(_ROUTE_, "x")).getResults().getNumFound());
25. nocommit improve this!
26. need to close before the MiniDFSCluster
27. @Nightly
28. need to close before the MiniDFSCluster
29. * * Gets all replicas that match a predicate
30. non-final due to injectChaos()

1. summary: Cut over AbstractDistribZkTestCase tests to SolrCloudTestCase description: We need to remove AbstractDistribZkTestCase if we want to move away from legacy cloud configurations. This issue is for migrating tests to SolrCloudTestCase instead.

jira_issues_comments:

1. This patch moves the following tests: * ConnectionReuseTest * CleanupOldIndexTest * CloudExitableDirectoryTest * ConfigSetsAPITest * DistribDocExpirationUpdateProcessorTest * DistributedVersionInfoTest * DistributedQueryComponentOptimizationTest * CloudMLTQParserTest It also fixes a bug in the MLTQParser, whereby the qparser will throw an exception if it's given a dynamic field.
2. Should I create new JIRAs for all the test batches I do, or just use this as an umbrella JIRA? There are a lot of tests to cut over, and the patches for each set will be pretty big. I'm trying to keep things grokable.
3. IMO you need not create separate issues. I also think you needn't upload patches and wait for review since you've already uploaded one for the first batch of tests you converted which got some feedback (Hoss). So in a sense that's a bit of a template for what you're doing with the rest. It's definitely nice to know, in advance, which batch of tests your tackling.

This reverts commit a35057fff278e25ad65a90d88ae85b8eec635b8b.
11. Starting to work on these again. Here's a patch cutting over DeleteReplicaTest and DeleteInactiveReplicaTest. In addition to migrating the tests, it adds the following: * static methods on CollectionAdminRequest for deleting replicas from a specific shard, or for deleting replicas on all shards * a static method on CoreAdminRequest for getting the status of a particular core, and a CoreStatus object to encapsulate things * the ability to assign cluster properties on configuration in SolrCloudTestCase * helper methods to select random slices and replicas from a collection state * helper methods to wait for specific collection states before continuing with a test * a method on MiniSolrCloudCluster to get the jetty for a specific replica I'll commit later on today
12. From CollectionAdminRequest.DeleteReplica: {code} - params.set(COUNT_PROP, deleteIndexDir); + params.set(COUNT_PROP, count); {code} This was a bug with SOLR-9319, right? Can you please commit this separately and call out SOLR-9319 in the commit message?
13. Oh yes, good plan.
14. Looking at this further, it's not just the bug with the count parameter called out above, but a bunch of other problems with DeleteReplica (it expects a specific shard name, etc) - SOLR-9319 tests it using straight SolrParams rather than using a CollectionAdminRequest. So maybe I should just commit the patch as a whole, but include SOLR-9319 in the commit message?
15. bq. So maybe I should just commit the patch as a whole, but include SOLR-9319 in the commit message?
