1. summary: cluster.xml doesn't take in STORM_LOG_DIR values
   description: cluster.xml config points ${storm.home} if user defines a different location for storm logs via STORM_LOG_DIR it won't take in that value.

jira_issues_comments:

1. also storm.py doesn't contain any code for looking STORM_LOG_DIR like its in storm.cmd
2. Please take a look at the patch. It contains the changes to cluster.xml and storm.py. Thanks, Harsha
3. The changes that are being made for STORM_LOG_DIR will only impact nimbus, supervisor, ui, and logviewer. They are not being set when the worker is launched so the worker logs will probably end up trying to be written to "/worker-...log" which I don't think is what we want.
4. [~revans2] Thanks for comments. Attached patch contains changes to supervisor.clj which takes storm.log.dir and passes it to worker.
5. body: I did some manual tests and the code works as designed. I would prefer to have this be a storm config instead of an environment variable, but I am OK with it the way it is. +1
